Bronx Tragedy

An alert photographer snapped this tragic scene just as David Goodstein, cantor of New York's Washington Heights congregation, was felled by a Bronx street car before the eyes of his horrified wife (extreme right). The victim, wedged beneath the trolley's front end, was extricated when firemen jacked up the street car. Taken to a hospital, he was found to have suffered a fractured skull.

Fleet Planes Rip Tokyo Industries

By MORRIE LANDSBERG

GUAM, July 30 (AP)—Man-made destruction hit the heart of the Japanese empire again today as the U. S. Navy sent its bold Third Fleet in to shell one big industrial city and 1500 American and British carrier planes ripped up 60 airfields and other military installations from Kyushu to Tokyo itself.

The Jap Domei News Agency estimated 1250 planes attacked Japan from dawn to mid-afternoon.

The main weight of the assault was directed at industrial sections around Tokyo by the carrier planes, Domei said. First estimates said 700 planes were participating. The number was boosted to 1000 and then to 1250.

American war power piled up triumph after triumph in a message of steel and fire that the Allied surrender ultimatum meant what it said—quit or be destroyed.

With action continuing, events recorded were:

Staff officers wrote of the groggy Japanese Navy as dead following the knockout punch at the Kure naval base Saturday. "This is it. This is the end of the Japanese navy," said one Third Fleet officer.

Task Force 38 stood close inshore and poured 1000 tons of shells into the industrial and rail city of Hamamatsu, 120 miles south of Tokyo and three miles inland. Leaving targets "burning fiercely" after a one-hour assault today.

Carrier aircraft, loaded with rockets and heavy caliber machine-gun shells, rampaged virtually unmolested over the home island of Honshu from Kobe north to Tokyo, hunting Japanese airplanes and air fields, railroad locomotives and anything else of military value.

One returning fighter group roamed at will over a "deserted" Tokyo before hammering a huge war plant in the southeast section of the capital. It didn't draw a single round of anti-aircraft fire.

The mighty Superfortress command announced "excellent results" in the bombing yesterday of six of the 11 forewarned Jap industrial target towns, a mission accomplished without the loss of a single plane, and promised to continue its preannounced campaign of devastation.

Destroyed or damaged: 1076 enemy aircraft and 915 ships or small craft.

Combatant ships sunk, 17; merchantmen, 74; luggers and small craft, 189.

Combatant ships damaged, 51; merchantmen, 133; luggers and small craft, 451.

Listed as sunk were the battleships Kyuga, Ise, Haruna, and the heavy cruiser Aoba. Nimitz previously announced six aircraft carriers of all sizes, a total of five cruisers, many destroyers and some lesser warcraft damaged.

The aircraft toll included: destroyed in the air, 55; destroyed aground, 398; damaged aground, 623.

Petain Trial Mystery Man Defends Aged Marshal

By RELMAN MORIN

PARIS, July 30 (AP)—Mysterious Maj. Jean Lostanau-Lacua testified at the treason trial of Marshal Petain today that "I am horrified to see a man of nearly 100 years of age blamed by others for their own errors."

The "mystery man" of the trial was hustled into the courtroom at the request of the presiding judge only a short while after police had announced their search for him had been unsuccessful.

He followed to the stand Edouard Herriott, three times Premier between wars, who said President Roosevelt "placed at our disposal materiel which we needed in the days before the collapse of France."

Herriot accused Petain of thwarting the government's effort to escape to North Africa. When Herriot concluded, the state announced it had finished its list of witnesses.

Alice Mandel, 15-year-old daughter of the slain Georges Mandel, former French Minister of Interior and of Colonies, was excused from testifying. She wrote a letter saying "I could only weep in the presence of the man who made my father suffer so much."

Knighthood Offer Declined By Churchill

LONDON, July 30 (INS) — Former Prime Minister Winston Churchill today declined an offer of knighthood in the Order of The Garter made by King George VI.

An official announcement made public Churchill's unprecedented refusal of this honor.

It was believed to be the first time a commoner ever has declined the Garter. Only three other commoners in British history have received knighthood in the Order of The Garter, which dates back to 1348 when it was founded by Edward III.

Street Battles Rage in Kweilin

CHUNGKING, July 30 (INS)—The Chinese high command announced today that Chungking forces had cleared the western and southern suburbs of Kweilin but that bitter street fighting continued. One of the three airdromes in the key Kwangsi Province capital has been overrun by the Chinese forces.

Mariposa Sails With Diplomats

With 28 passengers, most of them diplomats and their families leaving for posts in European cities, the Matson liner Mariposa sailed from East Boston today on its second and last trip from this port with civilian passengers since the end of the European war.

She is expected to military service. The vessel carried a cargo of cigarets, beer and soft drinks for the U. S. Seamen's Service.

Among those aboard was Abp. Carlos Serina, papal nuncio to Colombia, South America, who was returning to Vatican City accompanied by the Rev. Germain Blanchette, O. P. While in Boston they were guests of Abp. Cushing.

Bruce W. Forbes of Alleghany, N. Y., also was a passenger. He will be American vice-consul at Palermo, Sicily.

SEEKS RETIREMENT—While a congressional committee probes his financial affairs, Brig. Gen. Elliott Roosevelt has asked to be relieved from active Army duty. The son of the late President here is nightclubbing with his wife, Faye Emerson of the films.

Army Weighs Elliott's Bid For Release

WASHINGTON, July 30 (AP)—Brig. Gen. Elliott Roosevelt, whose financial transactions as a civilian are under congressional scrutiny, has asked to be retired from Army Air Forces.

The 34-year-old second son of the late President Roosevelt submitted his request for release from active service to Gen. H. H. Arnold.

A terse War Department statement last night gave no reason for the action. It said only:

"The office of the commanding general Army Air Forces has received an application from Brig. Gen. Elliott Roosevelt asking his release from active duty. Gen. Roosevelt's application has not yet been acted upon."

Roosevelt, long accustomed to headlines, returned to the front pages early last month with reports he had borrowed $200,000 from John Hartford, president of the Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea Co., in 1939 to finance a Texas radio venture, and that the debt later was settled for $4000. Hartford was said to have listed the remaining $196,000 as a bad debt deduction in his 1942 income tax return.

The House Ways and Means Committee began an inquiry into the reported transaction, and early this month Chairman Doughton (D.) of North Carolina, announced the investigation had been expanded to explore "further angles in several parts of the country."

Roosevelt could not be reached for comment after the announcement that he is seeking release from active duty.

The President's son began his Army career with a captain's commission on Sept. 23, 1940.

Japan Will Fight On, Says Premier

SAN FRANCISCO, July 30 (AP)—Premier Suzuki declared today: "There is no change whatsoever in the fundamental policy of our government to continue the prosecution of the war."

The 78-year-old premier thus rejected the Potsdam proclamation.

At a cabinet press conference yesterday, he added, "So far as the imperial government is concerned, it will take no notice of the proclamation."

As for recent heavy Allied sea and air attacks on Japan and defensive measures contemplated, Suzuki said: "I leave this with absolute confidence in the hands of our strategists."

He claimed that aircraft production was above anticipations, but gave added proof that all had not been well in this program with the sentence:

"Should this production quota have been completed just a bit earlier, we would have avoided causing much worry to various circles."

He said aircraft plants had gone underground, pictured some connected by a "considerably long" underground waterway, and, skipping to the food problem, promised increased rations.

Later Radio Tokyo claimed a "man in the street" poll showed that the Japanese people were backing up the government in the rejection of the ultimatum.

Big 3 Windup Seen Near

POTSDAM, July 30 (INS)—The Big Three meeting was said today to be in its last hours with President Truman planning to return directly to Washington from Europe.

The conference is now in its 13th day. Major decisions reportedly reached concern the future status of Germany as well as other European problems.

Mr. Truman is expected to fly to a European port when the conference ends and there will board the Augusta.

MacArthur to Warn Jap Civilians of Raids

MANILA, July 30 (AP)—Japanese residents will be warned within 72 hours of the time explosives and incendiaries fall upon their cities, Gen. MacArthur's headquarters announced today.

The leaflets will admonish civilians to leave their doomed cities and warn them of the impotence of defense.

Fight to Finish in Luzon Feud

By RUSSELL BRINES

WITH U. S. 14TH ARMY CORPS, Northern Luzon, July 30 (AP)—A personal war between Japanese Gen. Tomoyuki Yamashita and American and Filipino forces, fought in an area so high that clouds often interrupt combat, dominates the final three-pronged campaign to eliminate 24,000 Japanese on Luzon.

A total of 12,226 counted enemy dead in the first 27 days of July testifies to bitterness of this conflict. It is characterized by the terrain, which Lt. Gen. Oscar W. Griswold, commander of the 14th Corps, termed th most rugged he ever encountered.

Over the battle looms the once arrogant Yamashita. The conqueror of Singapore and perhaps six of his general officers now are hunted like common criminals in the center of a rapidly closing trap some 32 miles north of Baguio.

Americans believe all of these officers, including Yamashita, still are on Luzon, living in filth and forcing their troops and Japanese civilians caught with them to continue resistance.

Yamashita is believed to be in the center of the strongest, most fully organized pocket of Japanese resistance remaining on Luzon. An estimated 10,700 Japanese are trapped in approximately a 20-mile wide stretch of towering mountains between highways 4 and 11, north of a line between Senipsip and Kiangan.

Frothing Mad

OKINAWA, July 30 (AP)—The Yanks on southern Okinawa, many of whom have been thirsting for beer for months, have a special score to settle with Japan.

A single Japanese torpedo plane penetrated a heavy ack-ack screen dropped its fish, and it unerringly struck a freighter with one hold full of beer.

The beer was destroyed; the ship was saved.

Captain With Wife Clears WAC Bride

By EDWARD D. BALL

BERLIN, July 30 (AP)—While the Army inspector general's office inquired into the marital status of Capt. Carl G. Schultz, the Chicago officer expressed undying love today for WAC Sgt. Kanella Koulouvaris, whom he married in Berlin last Monday in a civil ceremony.

CAPT. CARL G. SCHULTZ
Under Detention

An elaborate church ceremony planned by the couple for yesterday was called off after Mrs. Ruth Priscilla Schultz of the same Chicago address as that listed in the captain's service record said she was Schultz's wife and the mother of his two small children, the youngest of whom he has never seen.

The Army, however, forgot to tell the guests that the wedding was off. A restless audience filled the flower-banked church, listening to wedding tunes and craning their necks for the bride and bridegroom who never showed up.

Two hours before the captain had been placed under detention as the Army checked Schultz' statement that last May he received a message from the Red Cross informing him of the death of his wife in an accident.

Capt. Schultz declared:

"I desire more than anything else in the world to clear the name of the most wonderful persons I have had the pleasure to meet—Kay.

"What action my first wife, Ruth, may take can never change my feeling toward Kay. I am ready to face anything that anyone may have to offer and, in so doing, I sincerely hope to clear the name of the WAC sergeant involved. She had nothing to do with this and is innocent of any besmirching of her name."

The sergeant said she and Schultz were married at a civil ceremony in Berlin last Monday, but had "planned to make our home together only after the military ceremony."

'That WAC Can't Have Him,' Says Chicago Wife

CHICAGO, July 30 (INS)—Mrs. Ruth Schultz, 23, who has received word that her 26-year-old husband, Capt. Carl Schultz of the First Airborne Army, was married to a WAC sergeant in a civil ceremony in Germany, declared today:

"I want this WAC to understand quite clearly that she can't have him under any circumstances. He's still my husband and I'll stand back of him.

"I'm worried for him because he's been through a lot of mental strain. If he could get home everything would be all right."

Train Kills 7-Year-Old Salem Boy

Salem police and railroad officials were attempting today to discover which of three trains eastbound towards Gloucester struck and killed Robert Michaud, 7, of Cedar st., Salem, around 9 o'clock this morning.

The boy's body was found by a yard crew of the Boston and Maine railroad.

According to police, three trains passed within a 15-minute period corresponding to the time the boy was known to be playing in the vicinity. It was belived one of the engines of the trains might show evidence of having struck the youngster.

Mrs. Joseph Michaud, mother of the boy, was reported to be prostrate and unable to give much information except that "he was out playing." She is the mother of four other small children. Police were trying to contact the father, Joseph in a Salem factory.

Ideal Weather Follows Day of Heavy Rainfall

The weatherman says the outlook for the next few days is very promising, with plenty of sunshine, light breezes and a minimum of humidity.

During the past 24 hours unusually heavy rainfall soaked eastern and western parts of Massachusetts and New Hampshire, both benefiting and damaging farms.

With only .30 inches in the Boston area, there were precipitations of 1.42 in. in Nantucket and in New Hampshire areas, and a fall of 1.37 in. in Westfield, Mass.

Soaking of hay harvests will reduce an already short feed yield, A. C. Hackendorf, U. S. Bureau of Agriculture said.

Certin eastern sections of the State, however, benefited.

OPA Fixes Jeep Price at $1090

WASHINGTON, July 30 (AP) The OPA today put a ceiling price tag on the civilian jeep—four-wheel drive counterpart of the military jep.

It's $1900 F. O. B. Toledo, plus taxes and the customary trade additions for transportation, handling and optional equipment.

The price is somewhat higher than the pre-war selling price of light passenger cars, but OPA described the vehicle as basically not a light passenger car but rather a four-wheel half ton truck.

The jeep was priced as a "new product." Consequently, the agency said, the action is not connected with reconversion pricing of new 1945 passenger cars.

Army to Release Lt. Jackie Coogan

INDIANAPOLIS, July 30 (AP)—Lt. Jackie Coogan, co-star with Charlie Chaplin in the silent movie, "The Kid," was en route today to a separation center at Santa Ana, Cal., to be released from the Army Air Corps.

Coogan took part in one of the command's most daring missions—the Glider landing of U. S. Engineers and British and Indian troops 160 miles behind Jap lines in North Central Burma in March, 1944. Coogan, in the Army since 1941, wears the Air Medal with Oak Leaf Cluster and the Presidential Unit Citation.

Kin to Fight For Sessler Children

While aides of Medical Examiner Timothy Leary made final arrangements today to exhume the body of Mrs. Josephine Sessler, 34, at Mt. Benedict Cemetery, West Roxbury, tomorrow, a court battle appeared in prospect for the custody of her two children.

Mrs. Sessler died at City Hospital May 29, eight days after she was admitted. On June 9, seven days after her funeral, her husband, Walter E. Sessler, a manual training teacher at the Abraham Lincoln School, married Gloria Hartford, attractive 23-year-old Emmanuel College graduate, also a Boston teacher.

Exhumation of the first wife's body was authorized by Dist. Atty. William J. Foley as the result of a demand for investigation of her death by Mrs. Ruth Gregory, a sister.

Mrs. Gregory, wife of a naval officer, said that with another sister, Mrs. Rita Graham, and their mother, Mrs. Francis Davenport, of Roseclair st., Dorchester, she plans to appeal to the courts for custody of Walter Sessler, Jr., and Margery.

The children are now in the custody of their father, and the second Mrs. Sessler said they planned to keep them.

Dr. Leary, who said he would engage in what might be described as a "fishing expedition," announced he would examine the body at Southern Mortuary tomorrow. He said he was obliged to make a thorough examination in view of the demands of the family.

He said he doubted whether he would be able to make an early report in view of the fact that considerable chemical analysis would be required. He indicated this might take at least a week.

Hub to See First Jet Plane at Airport

Flying enthusiasts will be given an opportunity to inspect the first jet plane ever to land in Massachusetts when a P-59 just off the assembly line at Niagara, N. Y., will be flown to Logan Airport, Wednesday, Public Works Commissioner MacDonald, announced today.

Airport visitors will be permitted to view the entire plane except for the engine, which is still secret. It was designed by General Electric engineers.

Court to Weigh Jockey 'Slavery'

Declaring that Alonzo "Pat" Patterson, 20-year-old jockey from Longview, Tex., appeared to be a victim of "involuntary servitude," Judge Frank J. Donahue ordered today that a hearing be held in Suffolk Superior Court Wednesday on his contract squabble with Paul Andolino, Boston horse owner.

Patterson last Friday was granted a temporary order to prevent Andolino from interfering with his riding in races at Suffolk Downs.

Today his petition for a similar order against the State Racing Commission came before Judge Donahue and Asst. Atty.-Gen. Roger Clapp declared the commission was neutral in the affair and was wiling to let the court decide on the validity of the contract.

"This looks to me like involuntary servitude," Judge Donahue declared. "Here is a boy who has been sold three or four times like a slave."

"He has been very willful about what he will do and won't do," counsel for Andolino declared in asking for a week's continuance to prepare his case.

"Oh, no," Judge Donahue replied, "this meeting at Suffolk Downs ends next week and we want to get this boy straightened out before that time. I'll hold a hearing on the case Wednesday and I'd like the racing commission to be represented here. Meanwhile, I'll continue the temporary restraining order."

Last Friday Patterson testified that in October, 1943, he had signed a contract in New Orleans to ride for one Harry Trosek for four years, receiving $30 monthly the first year, $60 the second, $100 the third and $150 the fourth. He also was to receive food, travel and medical expenses.

He said in April, 1944, after he had paid Trosek $1000 for 50 per cent of his contract, the latter assigned it to Donald Gilkey, a jockey agent, for $3500. Since Massachusetts racing law forbids a jockey being under contract to an agent, Gilkey assigned it to Andolina in June, 1944, for $2300.

He charged Andolino had refused to allow him to ride since last June 11 and had told him he would have to work out the contract as a stable boy.

Police Kill 4 Snakes At Weird Cult Session

ST. CHARLES, Va., July 30 (AP)—A cry that their religious freedom had been violated went up from a hill-country cult of snake handlers today after State troopers burst into their rites and killed four of their r eptiles.

MRS. RUTH G. SHUFELT AND FOSTER H. WEISS
Make Plans for Canning Demonstration

"What are our sons in the Army fighting for, anyway?" shouted cult leaders at yesterday's interruption of their ritual, propounded as a demonstration of faith based on the Scriptures.

Preachers of the cult at the afternoon-long ceremony dwelt on the comment of an unidentified soldier wearing ribbons and medals who before the officers intervened walked up to them and asked:

"What are we fighting for? This is dictatorship."

The troops were sent by Gov. Colgate Darden acting on a ruling of Atty. Gen. A. P. Staples that the snakes were a menace to public safety just as a mad dog might be. They went into action when a cultist slipped, went to an automobile parked in the roped-off snake arena in a valley betwee ntwo craggy mountains and pulled out a mass of writhing copperheads and rattlers.

A crowd of 5000 gathered from Tennessee, Kentucky and Virginia looked on spellbound. Frenzied, shouting cultists stretched up their arms and in a moment a half dozen of them were fondling the snakes and wrapping them around their necks.

Their clubs raised, the officers moved in among the men, women and youngsters fighting to get to the snakes.

They dragged off a few snake handlers, made them drop their reptiles and killed the snakes. They took two to the highway They took two to the highway and had concealed under their shirts.

Four of the snakes were dead when the melee was over but the cultists saved at least two for a later meeting. They announced that a new ceremony would be held next day with plenty of snakes.

Lessons in Canning Slated for Common

Householders will receive from the 1945 commercial pack of fruit and vegetables 25 per cent less than from the crop of last year, with the result that the only way they can assure themselves of a balanced diet is to can at home, Mrs. Ruth Gould Shufelt, home demonstration agent of the Norfolk County Agricultural School, warned today.

Mrs. Shufelt is to give a canning demonstration Wednesday at the Record-American-Sunday Advertiser garden on the Common at 2 p. m. and 7 p. m. She will repeat it Aug. 15 at the same hours.

The canned tomato crop available will be 50 per cent less than last year, Mrs. Shufelt said.

She stressed that five pounds of sugar per person are available now to each person but it is not essential sugar be used when fruits are canned. It can be added when they are used in the winter, when more sugar may be available, she said.

Mrs. Shufelt, two years ago, became the first woman ever to give a canning demonstration on Boston Common. She is a graduate of the Framingham Teachers' College and the mother of two sons in the service.

The vegetables used in the demonstration Wednesday and Aug. 15 will be those grown in the Record-American-Advertiser garden under the supervision of Foster H. Weiss, head of the vegetable gardening department of the Norfolk County Agricultural School.

Mrs. Shufelt emphasized that canning requires no unusual skill and that ordinary kitchen utensils are sufficient for the task. She added, nevertheless, that pressure cooker gauges would be tested for anyone who cared to bring them to the canning demonstrations.

The winter inevitably will bring a "serious situation" with respect to balanced diets unless housewives store valuable vitamins through canned vegetables, Mrs. Shufelt said.

She referred to President Truman's warning to the nation, June 2, in which he said, "In this fourth year of the war the need of every ounce of food which the American people can produce and preserve is greater than ever before."

Downey Raps 7-Million Army

WASHINGTON, July 30 (INS)—Sen. Downey (D.) of California said today the Army's insistence upon a seven-million-man force to whip Japan may defeat its own ends by disorganizing the civilian economy.

"Our Army is too big," he said. "We can blow the Japanese islands to pieces and we do not need an invasion. Starvation, bombing and disease will defeat Japan."

Downey said testimony before the Mead committee as well as advices from the Pacific coast indicate the possibility of a breakdown in transportation if the Army refuses to cut its forces.

Captive GIs Found Germans Kind, Cruel

There must be Germans and Germans.

Two American soldiers came home today on the freighter Benjamin H. Brewster. PFC William A. Chandler, 36, of Adams st., Medford, said it wasn't too bad, being captured. S-Sgt. Donald Greer of Overbrook rd., Warwick, R. I., on the other hand, had a tale of savagery to tell.

The Brewster and the freighter Clifford Ashby docked at the Army Base in South Boston, bringing home gasoline trailer trucks and other machinery America sent to war in Europe. Only 15 soldiers were aboard each ship.

S-Sgt. Greer brought home a tale of men who could have been renegades from humanity. A gunner in the 446th Bomber Group of the Eighth Air Force, he had to bail out over the Gotha fighter plane factory in Germany. He was captured by workers of the plant.

He lived in three German prison camps. The worst transfer was from East Prussia to Pomerania. His description of the railroad car in which he and other Americans were moved was "half a box car."

"We had no food for four days," Greer related. "The guards laughed at us. They would eat sandwiches and spit the pieces they didn't want into our faces. We were chained to benches in the cars. We had to straddle them, our feet manacled and our hands cuffed to the benches.

"You couldn't lay down; you just kind of leaned over, bracing on your hands when you got too tired. Then the guards would whack you."

PFC Chandler of Medford was luckier. He wasn't knocked aground by his captors. Chandler was driving a reconnaisance officer in a jeep during the Battle of the Bulge.

"All of a sudden," he related, "the jeep was blown out from under me. I didn't bleed, but the shock and fright made me damned scared. I crawled to a tree. Five Germans got me. They were members of a patrol, as we were."

The jeep was blown so completely apart, Chandler said, that he couldn't find any parts of the wheels. "Parts of that jeep were in the trees," he said.

Chandler was rescued by the Russians at the Stalag 4-B prison camp after three and one-half months.

Private Rites For Judy; Body Found on Beach

Private burial services were scheduled today for Judy Geagan, 2-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Geagan of Henley st., Medford, whose body was washed up on Wollaston Beach, 13 days after she disappeared from her parents' summer home at Rexhame Beach, Marshfield.

Identification was made by an uncle of the child, whose grief-stricken parents were exhausted after their long day and night vigil.

Judy Geagan

The body was discovered by James Kelley, 9, who lives opposite the beach on Quincy blvd. The spot was about 30 miles from Marshfield. Kelley notified a neighbor, Morritt France, who waded out a few steps and brought the body ashore.

Dr. George Dalton, medical examiner, examined the body and said death was due to drowning, and that there were no marks of violence. Marshfield police said all evidence indicated that death was accidental.

The body was sent to the funeral parlor of Daniel L. Wiles, Thompson sq., Charlestown.

Texas Girl's Love Vow Speeds to Boy GI Here

Blonde Gloria Neas, the 15-year-old "best girl" of Pvt. Robert Kelso, sped word across the country today to her boy friend not to worry about their romance.

"I'm still crazy about you, Bob, and I haven't had any dates," she said. "I hope you get home soon. I miss you."

Bob, who hoodwinked his Houston draft board at 13, saw six months' overseas service, won two battle stars, was wounded, and returned to Boston aboard a transport as America's youngest, battle-tested GI, at 14.

Limping on a bayonet-wounded leg, the youthful soldier made no secret of his age to reporters. Although disclosure of his correct age—something only a few close buddies knew until he landed here with 1988 European veterans aboard the SS Claymount Victory—began a probe that may lead to his discharge, Pvt. Kelso wasn't upset.

His only worry, he admitted, was that he hadn't had a letter from Gloria for three months. He dragged a picture from his barracks bag.

"Here she is," he shouted proudly. "That's Gloria. Isn't she cute? She's the cutest girl in Texas. But I can't understand why she stopped writing."

Pvt. Robt. Kelso

In Houston, as soon as she heard this, Gloria announced that Bob had no reason to worry about her.

"The reason I didn't write is that I went off on a vacation trip to New Braunfels without taking Bob's last letter with his address," she said. "I was so mad when I found I'd left it in Houston.

Gloria, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Neas, of Houston, had just arrived back home from her vacation when she learned that Bob had returned to this country. She shied away from questions about marriage and said she thought she wasn't quite old enough to be engaged.

The young war veteran also thought he hadn't reached the proper age to discuss marriage. But when that time came, he hinted, Gloria would be the girl he'd ask. In fact, he's brought her a bottle of perfume from Paris as an indication of his esteem.

"Oh! How wonderful!" exclaimed Gloria when she heard about the perfume. "I've never had any that was imported."

Soldier Bob's sister, Mrs. Troy Sherman of Houston, revealed she had received a telephone call from her brother.

Bob also reported to her that his wounded leg was hurting a little. He told his sister the Army was shipping him to Ft. Sam Houston, and that "after that, I don't know whether they'll send me home or to Tokyo."

In his Boston interview, the young soldier revealed how he received his leg wound. He went overseas in January with the 342d Armored Field Artillery and fought in France and Germany. During mopping up operations in Opperhopen, he entered a house which later was surrounded by 10 Germans.

While investigating a noise in the basement, a German soldier ran a bayonet through his leg. Retreating up the stairs, the young Texan slew his Nazi attacker with a rifle shot. He was hospitalized six months.

Giving his age as 18 to his draft board on his 13th birthday, July 28, 1944, Pvt. Kelso was accepted by the Army and sent to Ft. Sill, Okla., for training. His mother, who lives in Tulsa, thought he was at a YWCA camp and didn't learn he was a soldier for several months.

His father, Fred E. Kelso of Houston, said he objected at first but finally agreed not to report his son's correct age because Bob was so desperately anxious to be a soldier.

MISSING PAL—Larry Manley (right), 4, attempts to console his brother, Daniel, 6, of Calumet st., Roxbury, who has lost his dog. Daniel came home from an operation in the hospital to find that the six-months-old German shepard named "Buddy" has been missing since Friday. It's a brown dog and the first one Daniel has ever owned. INP by Harry Sinard

Claim Antiques Sold by Tenant

On petition of Prof. M. deKya Thompson of Brookline and his wife, Judge Frank J. Donahue issued a temporary restraining order in Suffolk Superior Court today to prevent Maurice Rubin from disposing of property in his possession which they claim is theirs.

The coule related they leased their apartment in Fairmount st., Brookline, in Dec., 1943, to one Robert J. Saxton and that last July he sold valuable furniture and antiques which it contained to Rubin.

Saxton, indicted by the Norfolk grand jury, was brought back from Niagara Falls recently by Capt. Joseph P. Mahoney of the Brookline police and now is awaiting trial. Some of the property has been recovered and is being held as evidence by Dist. Atty. Edmund R. Dewing.

The couple claimed Rubin, who operates a shop in Charles st., either still had some of their property or knew its whereabouts. Counsel for Rubin denied this.

Malden Crash Hospitalizes 6

Hopes of a day's outing were short lived today for six Malden persons when their car crashed into a tree on Broadway, Malden, only a half mile from their homes.

In Malden Hospital are, Frederick R. Green, 40, of Salem st., operator of the machine, his wife Esther, 38, two daughters, Johanna, 11 and Jacqueline 7, Mrs. Catherine Wendell, 59 and Dale S. Gillette, 11. The latter two live in Cottage st.

According to police Green lost control of the car when Dale Gillette accidentally stepped on the accelerator while shifting from the front to the rear seat.

Bath Suspect Held in Lowell

A 17-year-old Worcester youth, questioned by police of the Warren ave. station as a suspect in the Carver st. Turkish bath slaying of Chase MacArthur, 60-year-old Foxboro school superintendent, was turned over to Lowell police today on a warrant for larceny.

A South End girl gave the tip that sent Boston officers to Billerica to pick up the youth. Her identity was not made known.

The youth was picked up in Billerica by Special Officers John Hourihan, Michael O'Brien and Jeremiah Griffin, all of the Warren ave. station. Although not a serviceman, they said he was wearing a Coast Guardsman's uniform.

Weaponless Youths Rob Roxbury Safe

Bridges Demands Probe Of Coal Cargoes to Europe

WASHINGTON, July 30 (AP) —Sen. Bridges (R.) of New Hampshire wants to know why 6,000,000 tons of coal can be shipped to Europe while there is "neither coal nor transportation to supply New England."

He called on Interior Sec. Ickes to give "his honest opinion of this move" when he appears before the War Resources (Mead) Investigating Committee. Ickes, as Solid Fuels Administrator, recently announced that 6,000,000 tons of bituminous coal would be sent to Europe by Jan. 1.

"For months," Bridges said, "the administration has been warning our own people that this country has neither the coal or transportation to supply fuel needs in the New Englnad area. But they seem to have had no difficulty in finding 6,000,000 tons of coal for Europe, including the Nazis.

"The people of New England do not object to legitimate humanitarianism. They've proved their charity for centuries. But they don't like the ideaof being deprived of necesities in order to help the Administration pamper a defeated vicious enemy.

"There is coal in Germany. There are men to work the mines. There are authorities there to make them work. The fact is a good part of the shortage over there is due to the arrogant refusal of the enemy to go to work.

"I hope that no coal will be sent to Europe until the whole subject is explored and an effort made to make the people there supply their own needs."

Top Nazis Awaiting Trial Wail at Fate

By GEORGE TUCKER

MONDORF, Luxembourg, July 30 (AP)—Top Nazis and even some of the supposed iron men who built and bossed the German military machine are going to pieces morally and physically as they wait behind barbed wire for their war crimes trials.

Records kept by the Army since this interrogation center was opened May 13 told today of the strange effect of fear and confinement on the survivors of the German clique that once ruled Europe.

The records showed that:

Hermann Goering never has recovered fully from the abject fear of death he showed when first brought here.

Robert Ley, one-time overlord of German workmen, has shown marked physical and moral disintegration and has only one friend among the dozens of German leaders held here—Julius Streicher, Hitler's No. 1 Jew baiter.

Dr. Hans Frank, Nazi chieftain in Poland, who arrived at Mondorf wearing only lace panties, vacillates between hysteria and scorn.

The deterioration is apparent even in some of the general officers. They accepted defeat on the battlefield, but when the symbols of their power—their batons—were taken away, they went to pieces.

Field Marshal Keitel wrote Gen. Eisenhower to protest the confiscation of his baton. Adm. Karl Doenitz, who succeeded Hitler as Fuehrer, resented being photographed with a black number across his shirt front, and wrote to Eisenhower to tell him so.

Commenting on Goering, Col. B. C. Andrus of Denver, Col., commanding officer of the interrogation center, said he was "so debased by his vices he lacks the moral stamina of normal men."

Among the old line German military leaders, Adm. Doenitz has preserved a cynical exterior most of the time. While watching American soldiers stringing additional barb wire around the enclosure he said:

"I don't think this place is well enough protected—what you need is an extra fence with a few lions and tigers."

Streicher declares that when he was captured he was knocked down and kicked in the face and a negro spat in his mouth.

"Then one day," Streicher declared, "I was placed in a clean room. An American came in with a pitcher of cocoa and some crackers. He sat them down on the little table and stepped back and said, 'this is from me to you, Mr. Streicher—I am a Jew.'

"I broke down and cried. That was the most severe punishment I have ever received. I am wrong. I have always said there were no good Jews, but that boy proved to me that I am wrong."

2 Women Vets Among 300 Who Flock for Bonus

More than 300 World War II veterans converged on the State House today under the impression they could obtain the $100 bonus voted by the legislature in its closing hours.

George F. Kilgore, third deputy state treasurer, cancelled the remaining days of his vacation to return and handle the queries.

The first two former service women to apply for the bonus were Florence E. Bousfield of 203 Idrich rd., Wilmington, and Henrietta Publicover of 144 Paul Gore st., Jamaica Plain.

Six fathers whose sons were killed during the war applied for the bonus, to which they were eligible.

State Treasurer John E. Hurley said it might be necessary to hire Ford Hall and 300 extra help. Service men and women would be given preference, he added.

Massachusetts will pay $60,000,000 to 600,000 veterans of this war, according to estimates. The recipients must have been residents of the state six months prior to induction.

Pan-American Raps Air Ruling

WASHINGTON, July 30 (AP)—Pan-American Airways, Inc., today contended the Civil Aeronautics Board showed "gross favoritism" to Transcontinental and Western Air, Inc., in its recent transatlantic air route allocation decision.

Complaining an "injustice" to Pan American, the airline asked CAB to reconsider potrions of its July 5 opinion which gave TWA and American Export Airlines, Inc., as well as Pan American authority to engage in North Atlantic air service.

Pan American said the board also showed "favoritism" to American Airlines, Inc., by including its subsidiary, American Export, in the route allocation.

In anouncing its decision, CAB said it recognized there would be "some adverse competitive effect" upon Pan American but said this had been minimized to some extent by authorizing that line to operate to Chicago, Detroit, Boston, Philadelphia and Washington in addition to its present New York terminus.

DENY GREEK REGIME QUITS

ATHENS, July 30 (INS)—Official circles in Athens denied flatly that the government of Adm. Petros Voulgaris had resigned.

SPAR Tells of Hubby's Punches, Seeks Divorce

A little tired of a jealous husband whose emotion was constantly expressed with his fists finally goaded pretty Hazel G. Norman, a SPAR, to seek divorce from her Army sergeant husband, she testified in Salem Probate Court today.

She was married to Sgt. Jean Norman July 15, 1944, she told Judge Costello, and three days later, after a sailor friend who didn't know she was married telephoned her, her husband gave her a blaack eye, the first of many.

On their honeymoon he celebrated by slapping her in the mouth. S.ch bruises and contusions, she said, were difficult to explain on return to Marblehead Coast Guard Station where she is assigned.

The final indignity, she told the court, came when her husband called her a "cheap pickup" and then split her lip with a punch because she permitted a soldier to carry her bags in emerging from a taxicab to enter a Springfield hotel. Another SPAR, Dorothy Moore, corroborated her testimony.

Judge Costello took the case under advisement.

Unique and Outstanding Facilities for Research and Engineering in the Interests of Improved Products, New and Broader Service to Public Needs and Expanded Opportunities for Employment . . .

Continuing its recognition of the all-important relation of research and engineering to human progress; General Motors has long planned and now takes pleasure in announcing a noteworthy forward step in this direction—a great new Technical Center.

This "City of Science and Art," to be located just outside Detroit, is designed to provide the finest possible facilities—in the most inspiring and advantageous environment—for the research, engineering, styling and design which have long been fundamental in all fields of General Motors' operation.

The activities of the Technical Center will be in addition to the work of like nature performed by the various divisions of General Motors, and by the General Motors Proving Grounds.

The GM Technical Center is being established primarily in the interests of constant improvement of all General Motors products.

But beyond this immediate objective is the broader one of exploring opportunities to serve public needs and human aspirations in new ways and with new things more desirable, more valuable and more satisfying than ever before.

In addition, General Motors has pointedly in mind that the development of such new means of serving will help to provide new and greater opportunities for employment—will naturally create new jobs for more people.

For what we all hope may be but a short time, this important step in postwar progress must wait upon war needs. So long as military interests require; "Victory is Our Business." But as soon as events justify, ground will be broken for this, a significant step in General Motors' postwar program.

The great new GM Technical Center—inspiring evidence of faith in the future to which science and technology can guide us—will stand as a striking symbol of General Motors' goal—"More and Better Things for More People."

The gruesome find, in a ditch two yards deep and two yards wide, was made by a Russo-Polish Commission, the broadcast said. Lublin radio added:

Jap Envoy Returns To Post in Moscow

SAN FRANCISCO, July 30 (AP)—Goro Marishima, Japanese minister to Russia, who had been "conferring on very important matters" with members of the government in Tokyo, has returned to his post in Moscow, Radio Tokyo reported.

War Production Czar Requested

WASHINGTON, July 30 (AP) A recommendation for one-man control over all war mobilization and production came today from the Senate's Mead committee.

Reporting that lines of authority have been confused to the extent that frequently war programs have been retarded, the war investigating group suggested that the control be lodged in the office of War Mobilization and Reconversion, headed by John W. Snyder. This would make Snyder actual boss of the home front.

Clear Disaster Scene Wreckage

Shangri-La Diary

By CPL. MARGARET HASTINGS, WAC

Written Exclusively for International News Special Service (World Copyright and All Rights Reserved)

OWEGO, N. Y., July 30 (INS)—Gradually the natives slipped out of the jungle, making that peculiar, yapping sound that had first attracted our attention. Now they advanced toward us, single file. There were about a hundred men. They were jet black, and over their shoulders hung wicked-looking stone axes.

TWO DAYS OF PERILOUS DESCENT brought three weakened survivors into the valley of Shangri-La from the New Guinea mountainside where their airplane had crashed, killing 21 persons. WAC Cpl. Margaret Hastings and her two companions, Lt. John McCollom and Sgt. Kenneth Decker, were resting from their ordeal when they heard a strange chant, heralding the approach of the valley's natives. Unarmed except for a jackknife, the three waited for the approach of the savages they knew had never before seen a white person. Their only defense was a broad grin of friendship.

They were an ominous sight to three persons armed only with a jackknife. A smile seemed a thin shield against such men—and so many. But McCollom hissed again:

"Smile, damn it!"

So Lt. McCollom and Sgt. Decker and I stood as straight as we could and we smiled so hard—for very life itself—that for two days afterward the muscles of our faces ached. We held out our hands, filled with the hard candy. And I am afraid mine shook a little. The bottom had long since dropped out of my stomach.

Twenty-five yards away, on a knoll opposite ours, the natives paused. Just as suddenly their yapping stopped. It was replaced by an excited and frantic jabbering, accompanied by much gesturing. We couldn't tell whether that was a good sign or bad. We could only fasten the smiles on more securely.

Suddenly, a man whom we soon recognized as their chief, stepped forward. He beckoned for us to come to them. He beckoned again, this time more imperiously.

"I think we ought to go," McCollom said. "We'd better humor them."

But that was the point at which I rebelled. If I was going to end up in a jungle stewpot, the natives would have to come and get me. I wasn't going to deliver myself up.

More important still, only a long, fallen log connected our knoll with theirs. My feet and legs were now so painful I could scarcely stand. I knew I could never negotiate that jungle trestle.

"Honest, McCollom, I can't walk it. Truly I can't," I said.

"I know, Maggie," McCollom said gently. "Let 'em come to us."

So we began gesturing for them to come over to us. There was another excited pow-wow, and then the black men began to advance across the log bridge.

The chief, whom McCollom nicknamed Pete, led the way. Our smiles by this time had the fixity of granite. And each of us afterward confessed to wondering if we had survived the crash and the nightmare trip down the mountain only to meet death in some savage jungle rite.

About 15 feet from us, the natives stopped and clustered around. Pete was talking 60 to the second. All were staring at us in a manner we couldn't interpret.

We smiled and smiled and smiled until I thought my face would fall apart.

Suddenly Pete stopped talking. He and his followers just stood and stared. Their silence seemed a thousand times more sinister and threatening than their yapping or their chatter.

Pete stepped a little closer, staring at us searchingly. We tried to thrust the candy and the jackknife out a little further.

"Smile," ordered McCollom between grinning lips. So we stood there, smiling like idiots at Pete and his followers. Pete came a step closer. His look grew sharper.

And then, Pete's ugly black face crumpled into a broad and beaming smile. It was the most beautiful smile in the world. It was reprieve. It was friendship. It was life.

Pete stepped up to McCollom and held out his hand. McCollom, weak with relief, grabbed it and wrung it.

The black man who never before had seen a white man, and the white man who never before had met a savage on his own ground, understood each other. The smiles had done it.

"How are you? Nice to see you," McCollom kept saying over and over, as if Pete could understand him.

"Here! Meet Cpl. Hastings and Sgt. Decker," McCollom added, indicating us.

Pete pumped our hands, too, and we realized that even among the most primitive men, a handshake is the universal coin of friendship.

Then Pete's followers stepped up to shake hands, and there on the knoll we held as fine a reception as any ever given by Mrs. Vanderbilt.

Now that the tension and the nervous strain had drained out of us, we really took our first good analytical look at Pete and his followers. It suddenly came to the three of us that the natives were more afraid of us than we of them!

"Why, they're shy!" I exclaimed.

"Sh-h, don't tell 'em so!" Decker said crossly.

Far from being seven feet tall, they averaged from five feet, four inches to five feet, seven inches in height. And certainly, on close observation, they didn't look very fierce.

They were black as the ace of spades and naked as birds in feathering time. Their clothing consisted of a thong around their waists, from which a gourd was suspended in front and a huge, tropic leaf hung, tail-like, in back.

Some wore bracelets above their elbows. There were two kinds of bracelets, those woven of fine things and those made of fur.

I never saw a live animal all the time I was in Shangri-La, except pigs. And where the fur for the bracelets came from, I can't imagine. But I even saw a few funny fur hats, like Russian shakos, before I left the valley. It was a short brown fur, like our beaver.

All but Pete, the chief, wore snoods suspended from their heads and hanging far down their backs. At least, they looked like snoods.

They seemed to be made of heavy string, like a shopping bag, and they were certainly the New Guinea counterpart of a shopping catchall.

In these snoods, the natives tucked anything they had to carry. After all, they didn't have any pockets.

The snoods even acted as tobacco pouches, holding the coarse native leaves which they rolled into short green cigars.

Pete and his followers had the biggest, flattest feet any of us had ever seen. And some of his boys smeared themselves with a smelly black grease to make themselves look even blacker.

Half way through the reception, we had another bad moment in which we thought perhaps we were gone goslings. A nasty little man started raising Cain.

He was furious about us and everything else. We couldn't understand a thing he said, but we got the gist, all right. And we were scared.

But right then and there, Pete showed who was boss in that precinct. He shut up "The Trouble Maker," as we named him, in jig time.

In all the time we were in Shangri-La, Trouble Maker was the only mean, hostile native we met. He never liked us and the feeling was mutual.

Now we tried to press our gifts on Pete and his mob. They handled the jackknife curiously. We tried to show them that the candy was to eat. We would open our mouths, pop in a piece of hard candy, smack our lips and look rapturous—though we had come to hate it like poison.

Apparently they didn't understand us. So we thought we would give the candy to some boys of ten or twelve who had accompanied Pete and his men. But when we started to feed the kids, Trouble Maker danced up and down and shrieked until we backed off in a hurry.

I suddenly thought of my compact, which had survived everything so far. I fished it out of my pocket and opened it so that the mirror was visible. Then I showed Pete his face in it.

No child, under a superduper Christmas tree, receiving red boots and a fire engine could have been as wildly amazed and delighted as Pete.

If ever anything was calculated to make friends and influence savages it was that cheap red enamel compact from an Army PX. It was handed from man to man. These naked strangers beamed and gurgled and chattered like magpies over a sight of their own faces.

"Maggie, you ought to write home to the missionaries to stock up on compacts," Decker advised.

THE BIBLE AND WORLD PEACE

THE LAYMEN'S NATIONAL COMMITTEE, an organization of earnest and enterprising American men and women representing all fields of wholesome and constructive interest and activity in our national life, has sponsored the annual Bible Week observance in the United States for some years past, and will do so again during the week of October 15 this year.

There has been a profound and growing public interest in the Bible throughout the war.

The burdens and anxieties of war, and the sacrifices and tragedies of war, always turn the American people to the Bible for strength and solace, and have not failed to do so in the present struggle.

Accordingly, the Bible Week observance has been an occasion of great public interest in all the war years, with millions of people participating and deriving inspiration and comfort from it.

Preparations for the Bible Week observance this year are of public interest, and the greatest public participation in the history of the occasion is assured.

The Laymen's National Committee is performing an essential national service in this respect, and is performing it with advantage to the country as a whole and with credit to the thoughtful and sincere and patriotic men and women who constitute the leadership of the organization.

The war in Europe is already over, and the task of building an enduring and just peace upon the ruins of the conflict has begun.

There is even a possibility, although not as yet a probability, that the war in the Pacific will be over by the time the Bible Week observance is held.

In any event, the fashioning of the conditions and the character of the peace the world is to enjoy after the war is a matter of immediate undertaking.

THERE IS no better method of obtaining a good peace in the world, a peace of brotherhood and tolerance and compassion, available to mankind than a peace in accordance with the spiritual and moral principles and instructions of the Bible.

Of course, the world has never had a peace of that nature, and has never really tried to obtain it, but it would be a wonderful thing for humanity to have it after the present war—and the world should at least try to obtain it now.

Rear Admiral Reginald R. Belknap, chairman of the Laymen's National Committee, well says:

"Now as never before, a universal concentration on the Scriptures will do more for a lasting peace than any other effort."

The Bible Week observance will enlist the American people in that vital effort.

It will strengthen our reliance upon the principles and ideals of justice and tolerance.

And it will renew our faith in these essential tenets of the Bible.

Until all the world has reliance upon and faith in the simple and changeless truths of the Bible—making human conduct accord with its inspiring and comforting admonitions to gentleness and mercy—there will be no peace in the world and no rightful expectation of it.

TOO FEW NURSES

BECAUSE of the institution's failure obtain an adequate number of nurses, the Quincy City Hospital is closing various rooms in its maternity section.

Happenings like this should prompt Quincy and all other cities and towns to do something about the shortage of nurses.

High schools could profitably drop some of their frilly and faddy courses in favor of practical instruction calculated to equip young women for nursing.

The training of nurses has been much too haphazard, not only in Massachusetts but in most of the other States.

It is time we realized that nurses are as essential as doctors, and sometimes more so.

QUERIES FROM CLIENTS. Q—The sergeant whose name is Ryan says the father of our new First Lady, Mrs. Truman, was born in Tipperary, Ireland. How about it? A—That's right. Bob Wallace, Mrs. Truman's father was born on a farm in Tipperary.

Mrs. Truman

Q—Isn't it a fact there are more bald-headed women than bald-headed men? A—We have no statistics in our files on that situation. The thought of a bald-headed woman is not a pleasant one. Still, when you consider the wonderful wigs made for females she is not so bad off as a bald-headed man. Q—My husband, after seeing an entertainer smoking a cigar and making smoke come out of his ears, said it was an illusion. That it is impossible to make smoke go from the throat out through the ears. A—It wasn't an illusion. The estuchian tube connecting the throat with the ears makes the stunt mentioned possible.

WELLINGTON'S BONUS: After the peninsular campaign, the British Government awarded Wellington five hundred thousand pounds ($2,500,000) and a dukedom. After Waterloo, Wellington was awarded an additional two hundred thousand pounds ($1,000,000). Don't know what the soldiers who fought under Wellington were awarded for their part in the aforementioned triumphs. But I am interested and will make a trip over to the library tonight to see if I can find out.

ALMOST CONFIDENTIAL: "Brunettes are the most even tempered of females and have the greatest love responsiveness. Red-heads are volatile and easily persuaded, but difficult to control. Blondes are more capable of enduring affection." Such is the claim of one of our leading psychologists . . . Am asked if there is a race-track in the United States which sells a one-dollar mutuel ticket. Don't know of any, however, all tracks should sell dollar mutuel tickets. The machines are geared to figure on the basis of a one dollar bet. I don't know who originated the two-dollar minimum idea.

SIDELIGHTS: Somerset Maugham said that "Bridge is the most entertaining and intelligent card game the wit of man has so far devised." Perhaps Mr. Maugham is right, but I still prefer pinochle . . . According to a writer in the Irish Independent, the "most Irish church outside of Ireland" is St. Patrick's Church on Mission st., San Francisco . . . Lady Montgomery, mother of Field Marshal Montgomery, recently said: "Children are the best insurance policy for a successful marriage and there is always the chance of a bonus in the shape of a clever son."

MULES & MEN: "How do you think a girl from Milwaukee would get along as the wife of a man from Long Island?" asks a Wisconsin subscriber. Depends upon what part of Long Island the man is from. Flushing men make good husbands but usually want two nights a week out with the boys. Forest Hills men are the "home boy" type and want to own their own home as soon as possible even if it necessitates the wife buying less clothes. Jamaica men are nearly all horseplayers. They have a habit of reading the racing form in bed and keep the lights on in the bedroom until after midnight. The wives of Great Neck men are usually golf widows. A Manhasset husband is always trying to mortgage his house so he can buy a yacht.

SYSTEMS: There are even systems designed to beat that gambling slot machine known as the "one arm bandit." In England these are known as "fruit machines." In Coventry, England, there is reported to be a man who makes 20 pounds ($80) a week playing the fruit machines. He pays no tax on this, as in Great Britain there is no income tax collected on gambling gains. This man's system is to hang around the machine all day. When it goes 12 times without paying off and the player leaves discouraged the system player steps in and plays. He nearly always wins.

FAIR ENOUGH

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

Copyright, 1945, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

NEW YORK, July 30—About three years ago, Gene Tunney, then a lieutenant-commander on active service in the Navy, now high and dry in the hills behind Stamford, Ct., singing "Barnacle Bill," volunteered a suggestion concerning the costume of the American flat-hat, blue-jacket or gob.

Westbrook Pegler

Costume, rather than uniform, seems the appropriate word for this quaint survival of olden times in a fighting force that hasn't had a sailor in the literal sense of the word within the memory of any man now serving.

It has 13 buttons on the pants, a sentimental if indelicate reference to the original States of this peace-loving Republic.

It has inadequate pocket room and, with the passing of time and the change of style, has become a mere memento, as impractical as the Gordons' kilts.

COM. TUNNEY'S concern was not aesthetic or sartorial, although I am not the one to allege that there is any phase of any problem worthy of his utter neglect.

His interest was physical fitness and the training of thousands of boots just entering the Navy for the war who were, he said, being made pot-bellied by the design of the pants.

Having neither belt nor suspenders to hold up their bell-bottom trousers but only a sort of expansion plate aft which can be closed by laces, the enlisted sailor must keep them up by abdominal pressure after he has stooped a few times and the pants have been laundered, stretching the cloth.

That, Com. Tunney argued, deformed the posture and the flat hat, having no bill or peak, presented no target for the hand in the manual salute with the result that sailors sometimes think they are saluting when they are scratching the right ear.

This was an issue that could bide its time on the future hook but it was revived recently by one of our higher officers in a proposal to let sailors hereafter dress in a style unmistakably masculine and modern for the good of their morale as well as of their health.

And I have found no more interesting comment on the subject than that of an old blue-jacket, signing himself Arthur L. Palmer, of Long Beach, Cal., who says he sailed with Bob Evans, 40 years ago and apparently isn't proud of his old pictures.

"WE READ in the papers," he says, "of a bill to abolish the monkey-suit. An old Navy salt myself, 1906 and 1918, I am for the change. It is long overdue and it is important. These kiddy clothes are bad for the Navy and the nation.

"Consider the real, original reason for such a suit. The usual historical and utilitarian stuff is just bell-bottomed bunk. The fact is that these nursery outfits served a useful British purpose in the hard-boiled long ago, to exalt the 'bridge' and degrade the 'jo'c'ale.'

"They marked low-caste. They tamed tough tars, made them ruly, socially inferior and all that sort of thing.

"Hard to run amok or mutiny in rompers, wot? Even a gorilla's soul sank, subservient and silly. Put one on yourselves, sirs, and note the effect.

"Do the brass hats and the gold-stripers defend the suit? Test them. If it has merit, propose that all Navy personnel, officers and men, wear it. Then listen to the howl. No looks, no comfort, no utility, no convenience, no dignity, nothing to be said for it but easy stowage. Light opera, comic strip stuff but not good sense and not American.

"On duty, dungarees will do. Dressed up, that's different. Character, self-respect, efficiency, behavior, all are at stake. A trim, snappy, dignified uniform makes a man feel and act like a man. Today ships are technical, and mechanical and the men are specialists. Let America lead off here. Let's be done with this make-believe, roistering, rowdy, sloppy irresponsible notion of salty sailing ship yesterdays and lousy waterfronts. We have modernized our ships and methods. Now let's make the monkey-suit walk the plank.

"Our boys are tops by any test. They have a right to be uniformed, one and all, regardless of rate or rank, like officers and gentlemen."

It is barely possible that the men who wear the suit might have some preference and may still regard it as an honorable uniform to be worn with pride and defended man-fashion against all criticism. On performance in war they seem not to have felt unmanly or low-caste. Has anyone ever thought to ask them?

Hollywood Today

By Louella O. Parsons

HOLLYWOOD, July 30—Very interesting and very nostalgic is the news Jesse Lasky and Walter MacEwen have bought the film rights to Dorothy Caruso's best-seller, "The Life and Death of Enrico Caruso."

I say nostalgic because I interviewed the great tenor when he made his one and only movie for Jesse 25 years ago. I remember so well he sketched me as we talked — a caricature that brought chuckles of delight from the other people on the set.

Joan Fontaine

The Caruso story is, indeed, a coup for Jesse, since there were many bids. It is fitting he should have it because he was a great friend of Caruso's. He is particularly thrilled over acquiring the master records of the marvelous Caruso recordings, which tests prove can be re-recorded on the film.

Mrs. Caruso has set her heart on having Joan Fontaine play her and it looks as if she'll get her wish. Jesse said he believes he can arrange a preview at the Metropolitan where the celebrated tenor was the idol so many years. It would be the only movie ever shown there.

WHAT A STORY in this Claire Phillips—what a story! The first American woman spy since the Civil War to be decorated by our government, Miss Phillips is heading to Hollywood to tell her adventures and, yes, you guessed it, probably sell them to the movies. The producer most interested is Mary Pickford, but let me tell you more about Claire. A former vaudeville performer, she went to Manila about six years ago and opened a swank club. When the Japs took over she was permitted to keep operating and she learned many valuable secrets from her Jap patrons. Finally suspected, she was arrested, tortured and sentenced to die, but that was about the time Gen. MacArthur landed, and she was rescued. She is a fascinating woman with a fascinating tale to tell.

IT'S TIME some smart producer put Nancy Coleman (Mrs. Whitney Bolton) to work. She's prettier than ever since the birth of the twins and looked so smart in a large red hat when I saw her dining with her husband (pretty good looking, himself) the other night. The story Nancy will do is "Once and For All" at PRC, with Henry Brash producing. It's a yarn of modern New Orleans, which will be a change. Usually the yarns about New Orleans drip with magnolias and the sentiment of the Old South.

Fifi says she expects to be married within the month, and she's very happy about the whole thing, as a bride-to-be should be.

She gets the break of a lifetime in "Monsieur Beaucaire," in which she has been given the femme lead opposite Bob Hope. Paramount today received a cable from Bob saying he won't be back until August 18. The movie will get going immediately after he returns to Hollywood.

JUDY CANOVA is plain busting her hillbilly buttons with pride—and no wonder. Her husband, M-Sgt. Chet Englund, in Germany with the U. S. Military Intelligence, has just uncovered the hottest photo record of Nazi secret service agents yet brought to light. The identification pictures, well hidden, were shot on 16 mm film and show fullface and profile pictures of men and women agents who may yet be operating, completely unsuspected, in other countries. His superiors have complimented Englund to the skies for discovering this photographic record, which will be invaluable in tracking down Nazis yet at large.

MARY McGUIRE, who left Hollywood six years ago for London and ran into so much personal trouble, is on her way back to Hollywood and a new try at the movies. To be exact, she is in Las Vegas at the moment with her new husband, Philip Legarra, and she has written friends she hopes all the dark clouds have lifted and that this will be a new start for her. She was married, previously, in London to an older man who was suspected and tried for his Nazi sympathies. Mary suffered a nervous collapse and her friends feared she might never recover her health. Her new bridegroom is an American who represented an American aircraft company in England.

This is their third child—the eldest is in the Army—and they have been married many years. He is the director of "Green Years" at MGM; Sally Eilers leaves Thursday for New York. She'll

Hub Air Rules Guard Buildings

A Boston duplication of the disaster of the Empire State building, hit by a B-25 bomber Saturday with the loss of 13 lives, is virtually impossible. If pilots strictly observe Massachusetts law governing flight altitudes.

Under this law, civilian pilots may not go below 500 feet in uncongested areas or below 1000 in congested areas. Defined as cities, towns, assemblages of people and penal institutions.

The State has no control over military planes but it is assumed that they, too, conform to civil regulations.

76 Floors Reopen At Empire State

NEW YORK, July 30 (AP)—Business was resumed today on 76 floors of the 102-story Empire State Building, where Saturday a B-25 bomber crashed into the 79th floor, killing 13 persons and injuring 26 others.

Some confusion was reported in the lobby, because only four of 10 elevators serving the 66th to 102d floors were operating. Other elevators operated at reduced speed.

Of eight injured persons still in hospitals, four were listed as in critical condition.

Stalin's Wife's Father Dies in Moscow

MOSCOW, July 30 (AP)—A notice in Pravda today announced the death of Sergei Alliluev, father of Premier Josef Stalin's second wife, Nadia, who died several years ago.

The obituary said that Alliluev's apartment served as a hideout for V. I. Lenin before the revolution and as a meeting place for Lenin and Stalin. The name of Mikhail Kalinin, Soviet president, was first on the list of those offering condolences.

Clear Up Garden for Vacation

By FOSTER H. WEISS

Vegetable Gardening Dept., Norfolk County Agricultural School, and director of Boston Record-American Sunday Advertiser demonstration garden on Boston Common.

This is the season when all good gardens have crops which are maturing faster than they can be used. Here are a few hints on what to do with the surplus.

If you are getting too much cabbage or Swiss chard, and not enough lettuce, make a note to plant less cabbage and chard and allow more space for a second planting of lettuce. Check with your neighbors. Perhaps you can make a trade. Compare notes with him and get acquainted.

Vacation time is here, with many families away, some of them for several weeks. Keep in mind that the insects will not take a vacation while you are away.

Be sure to leave the garden in good condition when you leave. Cultivate all crops, pull weeds and give crops that need it a final dusting.

Many crops will mature while you are away. I suggest that you pick as closely as possible and then arrange for someone to use the vegetables during your absence. Make every effort to avoid waste of food.

Pick products before they grow too large. Many gardeners, especially beginners, are reluctant to harvest their crops on time, with the result that they do not get the full benefit of quality and flavor.

Do not measure the size of your crops by what you see in the market. The best practise is to start harvesting them when they are small. Your yields may not be so big, but in this way you can use them all up. In many cases your products will never get as large as those grown by commercial growers because of different soil conditions and varieties.

Canning should be done now. Attend the demonstrations at our garden on Aug. 1, given by Mrs. Ruth Gould Shufelt.

Rites Tomorrow For Mrs. Stone

Services will be held tomorrow afternoon for Mrs. Carrie Morton Gregg Stone, 78, widely known horticulturist, who died at her summer home in Marion Saturday.

She was the widow of Galen Stone, a founder of the Boston brokerage firm of Hayden, Stone and Co., in whose honor a Liberty ship was named last August.

Mrs. Stone's entries in Boston flower shows during the past 30 years always have won high honors.

She is survived by a son, Lt. Col. Robert Gregg Stone; two daughters, Mrs. Huntington R. Hardwick and Mrs. John P. Chase, 36 grandchildren and 31 great grandchildren.

Veterans' Friend

By JAMES F. McENANEY

Q—As a widow of a veteran of World War I, I would like to know if a bill has been passed providing a pension in my case? My husband's death was not due to military disability. S. G., Boston.

A—Yes. Last December a bill was passed by Congress providing a pension of $35 monthly for widows, without minor children, whose income is less than $1000 annually. If minor children are included, $10 is added for first child and $5 for each one additional. Income must not be more than $2500. This also applies to World War II widows.

Q—Recently you stated the 6th Armored Division, now at Reims, would be sailing for the U. S. shortly. Does this have reference to the men who have less than 85 points, and designated for C.B.I., or does it include those with more than 85 points? C. W., Taunton.

A—It means the entire division. Those designated for the C.B.I. (China-Burma-India Theater of Operations) will eb given 30 days furlough in the U. S. before redeployment. Those with 85 points or more, and classed as surplus, probably will be discharged.

Q—I have recently married a soldier and I have a child by a previous marriage. Will my husband be allowed the 12 points against his discharge foro the child? L. D., Salem.

A—The points upon which a soldier is discharged must have been accumulated prior to May 12, 1945.

Q—When a man is overseas in service, does he have the right to reduce the allowance to his wife and child to $40 per month?

A—No. Family Allowance to a wife and child is $50, and cannot be reduced by the soldier, whether he is overseas or in the United States.

Q—What is a first child's allotment from a divorced father? A. M., Somerville.

A—If the soldier has not remarried the child receives $42; if he has remarried, the child receives $30; if he has a child by the second marriage, a total amount of $50 payable to two children of a soldier is divided evenly between them when they live apart—$25 each. Payment is made until soldier is discharged or enters non-pay status, or the child reaches 18 years of age, whichever occurs first.

Q—My application for Emergency Maternity and Infant Care has been approved. Now my husband has been discharged from the service. Will I still get the free care? C. H. Watertown.

A—Yes, provided the application was approved while he was in the service.

Scores of questions are being received from persons inquiring about certain units and date of return to the U. S.

Many of these organizations have not been listed as yet by the War Dept. Due to that fact it is impossible to answer a great many of these questions at this time. However, on another page of this newspaper a column entitled "The Boys Come Home" is published, giving details of units due to sail and those arriving at U. S. ports. Latest information on outfits coming home will be found in that column.

Broadway

By Dorothy Kilgallen

Copyright, 1945, King Features Synd., Inc.

NEW YORK, July 30—So you decided to spend your two weeks vacation in New York, did you? Well, how smart! The food on this island is better than the food you'll find at most mountain resorts; we have a minimum of mosquitoes, our hotel beds are softer and service (while not up to par in many places) is better than you'll get down on the farm. And we have so many sights to see!

Dorothy Kilgallen

You'll notice, possibly to your sorrow, perhaps to your delight, that Broadway is getting to look more and more like the midway of a raucous carnival. Stroll along the Big Street at 9 in the evening; you'll be jostled by sailors and plump girls in summer dresses and idling soldiers and tired couples dragging little children through the crowds. You'll see more popcorn stands and fruit drink cubbyholes than you've ever seen anywhere outside of Coney Island, and you'll smell the butter and salt and taffy and waffle smells of Coney Island, too.

There are a flock of little greenish - lit picture - taking places, where you can be photographed behind a bar or in a canoe or at the gate of a honeymoon cottage, or with your head sticking up behind a cardboard cutout of a curvesome seminude. It's fun to stand on the sidewalk and watch the self-conscious couples, the giggling threesomes, the insouciant lone soldiers, posing for the bird'e while the crowd watches.

YOU WILL NOTICE cheap souvenir shops selling pennants and vari-sized replicas of the Statue of Liberty and dolls and paperweights and religious articles that light up in the dark, and lamps and pillows and ghastly "modernistic" statuary.

You'll pass night clubs that are like goldfish bowls with their two big glass walls right out on the sidewalk and the laughing crowds outside enjoying the entertainment as much as the paying customers inside, for the floor show is on a raised platform in the middle of the room and the doors are wide open and the music and jokes and singing come right out and mingle with the other sounds of Broadway.

★ ★ ★

THEN THERE are the first run movies with their big glittering signs and their cutout pictures, life-size and bigger, in front. Someone has tried to steal Jose Iturbi's head from outside the Capitol, and the swoon champions have left lipstick kisses all over Frank Sinatra's face in the same panel.

Washington Scene

By George Dixon

Distributed by King Features Synd., Inc. Reproduction Prohibited

WASHINGTON, July 30—Ordinarily I try to keep off serious subjects. The way I feel about it there is enough seriousness in the world without any assistance from me.

Also—and this is no slap at my colleagues in the writing trade—I am convinced they are prone to do too much thinking. They go around thinking all the time and the results are usually pretty grim. I do practically no thinking at all. The fact that the results are the same, is coincidental.

However, I have just received a letter which has caused me considerable mental agitation. I will not go so far as to say it started me thinking because I do not wish to leave myself open to cracks like "There's Dixon—boasting again!" On second thought maybe it'd be better just to print the letter without further comment. I think it speaks amply for itself.

The author is 1st Lt. George S. Noonan of Vergennes, Vt. Readers, Lt. Noonan!:

"Dear Mr. Dixon: After nearly four years of Army life from a private to an officer, basic training to combat, I was finally hit by an artillery shell on the Saar river last December. Since being hospitalized, I've had time to get a glimpse of what I have been fighting for.

"The recent news of $100,000,000 aid to Italy cannot be received with zest by anyone who has been in infantry combat in Europe. According to the news release, the reason for the aid is two-fold:

"(1) American troops are in Italy. (2) Italy has recently declared war on Japan.

"Why do the powers in Washington have to succumb to such silly reasoning? In the last war, Italy declared war on Germany only when it was apparent that the Allies would win. Her main reason was to be on the winning side so that she might share the spoils of war.

"In World War II, she sided with Germany when it looked as though Germany would win. At the time, it was called 'The Stab in the Back.'

"Italian soldiers fought against and killed American boys. When the going was rough and Italy was invaded she surrendered. She has since followed a 'sympathy' program. If American troops are in Italy it is her own fault. They have themselves to blame for entering the war. We are not in Spain, we are not in Switzerland, we are not in Sweden.

"Does Washington actually expect Italy to fight against Japan now that they have declared war? It is merely another step in the 'sympathy' program. One officer serving with me once remarked.

"'It makes little difference which side Italy is on. It takes ten divisions to keep them down if they are against you and ten to keep them going if they are with you.'

"ITALY HAS BEEN out of the war for some time now. Do we returning veterans have to expect the same monetary contributions to go to Germany in a similar length of time?

"Our expenses have already been higher than any other nation on a percentage basis. Many of these have been unnecessary. Just as an example, I cite one or two cases. How many people who have been told of the great miracles of Lend-Lease know that gasoline granted to England under that plan has been sold back to us, at a profit, of course, to fuel our American bombers. (I had to get authorization from a British ration board for gas for my infantry battalion vehicle.)

"Who can explain why the British may use the Panama Canal through lend-lease, yet America pays for shipments through the British Suez Canal?

"As hard as it seems, the way to convince people to stay out of war is to let them suffer the consequences of it. If the people of Italy and Germany must suffer, then let them suffer. Only then is the price of war brought home to them.

"If we pay their way to easy street, they will try again. They are taught to do just that. An enemy machine-gunner will fire unmercifully until his own life is in danger. Then he picks up his white flag, puts his arms over his head, grins and expects to be captured and live the life Americans live.

"Most gunners surrendering in that manner are shot between the eyes—and rightly so. For if he really wanted to live our kind of life, he shouldn't have fought for his own. He really wanted sympathy, and another chance. Literally speaking, they should be handled the same way now the war is over.

★ ★ ★

"WE SOLDIERS have done our part; we expect Washington to do its. We have no desire to come back to pay income taxes the rest of our lives to alleviate suffering of those who tried to line us up in the sights of their rifles. (What about women and children? I have seen children signal artillery targets; I have seen women fire shotguns at Americans!)

"Surprisingly enough, we don't plan to vote for those who do feel that way."

★ ★ ★

HOMER JOSEPH DODGE, the noted antiquarian—he claims his great-great-great aunt had the first bag tossed overboard at the Boston Tea Party—was explaining to us the other day how he acquired an inferiority complex.

"All my life," he said, "I have been reading headlines in the newspapers. They keep harping on one theme. For years it has been, 'Ruth Hits Homer,' 'Gehrig Belts Homer,' 'Cliff Smacks Homer'—and in all that time Homer has never once struck back."

MONDAY MORNING MUSINGS: Members of Boston waiters' and bartenders' union now refer to good tippers as "livelies" . . . This is a development from the whilom usage "live ones" . . . Scandal is in the making over the disposition of waste paper . . . If the subject fails to land in the headlines prematurely, it will be a campaign issue two months hence.

It will be made official within a fortnight with Eddie's statement that he has launched a firm on his own.

In event some are inclined to quibble at the use of "unofficial" as an adjective describing a telephone tap, in the belief that all taps are unofficial, it should be explained that certain Federal agencies still retain the right to eavesdrop . . . The prohibition is against use of tapped conversations as evidence.

MIAMI NEWS ORDINARILY would be a bit unseasonable, but hapless vacationers who have just concluded a vacation chosen after great forethought as the "last two weeks in July" may not deem it so . . . (Has the wind ever blown so consistently from the east and northeast during a similar period in recent history?) At any rate, Miami hotels yet remaining at the service of the civilian population have not been so crowded in their existences—winter or summer . . . It has been the best summer ever for the Roney-Plaza . . . When the military returns the Hotel Vanderbilt (on Miami Beach), Ben Gaines, the Boston lad who has become one of that city's important land-holders, will not resume as its operating head . . . Mr. Gaines is building a plush-y cocktail lounge opposite the hotel he ran so successfully . . . It will be named The Colony.

SPEAKING AS WE WERE above of "livelies" (or "rapid men" as the Damon Runyon literary subjects once called them) the Music Box staff and Tanya, the songbird, will recall affectionately the "fastest" trio of spenders the place has entertained . . . They were three sailors—enlisted men . . . Inseparable pals, they had two favorite musical numbers which they requested over and over and over again . . . One was "What Is There To Say?" . . . The other was an old Cole Porter song which won no enormous amount of recognition when the show which gave it birth, "Fifty Million Frenchmen," was playing Broadway . . . "I Worship You" was the song. Except for their repeated requests for these tunes, the sailors were ideal customers.

Beauty Awakens Complexions

WE WOMEN go for jewelry in a big way for it helps to bring out the coquette in us . . . especially if we are lucky enough to own a Coro-designed choker of large oval-shaped stones outlined in pearls and set on a black satin band to give glamor to our throats . . . but for heyday highlighting of a brilliant complexion . . . we should insist on having and using a skin-firming astringent that peps up the face.

By RUTH MUGGLEBEE
Beauty and Fashion Editor

COSMETIC FASHIONS of the past have all called for extremes . . . the ancients of eastern Europe completely circled their eyes with a heavy black line . . . ancient Romans emphasized the small temple veins with a blue line. It is possible that many of the so-called cosmetics they used were detrimental to the skin . . . for there was nothing scientific about their creation.

Today, the approach to beauty is entirely different. Cosmetics have been developed from a sound knowledge of dermatology and an understanding of the American woman's desire to look NATURALLY lovely.

For instance, you read much about the correct way to apply make-up . . . and that is as it should be . . . but there's another side to this beauty story that you should know, too. It has to do with the proper way to REMOVE all kinds of make-up . . . especially the cake type. The proper way . . . of course . . . is the one that actually gets your skin clean without mauling or pulling it. You need to use a cleanser that really works if the appearance of your skin is to be benefited.

And if you are unlucky enough to have oily skin . . . or an oily area . . . and you use cake-type make-up in the belief that it will absorb the oiliness . . . your skin needs extra-special attention.

SKIN MUST NOT BE STRETCHED

In any event . . . make-up must be thoroughly removed and MUST be followed up with a skin-freshing astringent to keep the contours of the face firm and fine. In our desire to remove every last trace of make-up . . . we are liable to pull and push the skin tissues . . . and such mauling does it no good. For the skin must not be stretched . . . it must be circulated and stimulated and strengthened . . . but not pulled at.

Such a firming astringent that helps brighten the complexion as it firms the facial feature is one which has been created by a woman who has made beauty her business. Her entire life, practically, has been based on emphasizing the best features of American women . . . and in her cosmetic line has reduced beauty aids to the real necessities.

For the name of this feature-firming astringent and complexion awakener, phone the Beauty Dept., LIBerty 4000, or write me, care of the Boston Evening American, inclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Fashion

WHEN creators of fabric and dress designers join in a co-operative effort and use museum collections as stimulus to both, here is the result . . . a two-piece summer frock in a Bourget print of Enka rayon created by Lina Hartmann from a Greek terra cotta statuette of an ox 1400-1100 B. C. For Brownie designed the model in pinky beige . . . a conversation piece wherever it goes.—R. M.

Breads at Picnics

By MARTHA LEE

AS long as there are sandwiches, cake and lemonade—old play clothes to wear, and no formal table where they have to sit down, it's a "picnic" to youngsters. The place can be anywhere—the porch, the backyard, the living room, if it's rainy—as long as the holiday spirit is there.

You'll enjoy more of a holiday, too, if you plan your picnic menu and order your groceries the day before. Get two or three types of bread to please special tastes in the family: raisin bread, whole or cracked wheat, and rye; plump frankfurter buns, round hamburger buns, and a golden crusted loaf of fresh enriched white bread—all make cool work of picnic sandwiches.

You'll find fresh home-made sandwich breads a delicious treat, too. These fruity breads are as sweetly suitable for dessert as they are for sandwiches—and combine well with any of the sweet fruity fillings or melting peanut butter spreads.

BANANA NUT BREAD

½ cup shortening
1 cup corn syrup 2 eggs, beaten
2 cups sifted enriched flour
3 tsp. baking powder 1 tsp. salt
½ cup mashed bananas
1 cup chopped nuts

Cream together shortening and corn syrup. Add eggs. Beat until light and fluffy. Sift together flour, baking powder, and salt. Add to creamed mixture alternately with bananas. Mix well. Add nuts. Pour into greased loaf pan, 4½ x 8½ inches. Bake in moderate oven (375 deg. F.) 1 hour and 15 minutes. Makes 1 loaf. Cuts 20 slices, ¼ inch thick.

BANANA NUT BREAD FILLINGS

Mix ½ cup chopped dates, ¼ cup chopped nuts, 1 tbsp. mayonnaise or salad dressing, 1 tsp. lemon juice, ½ tsp. grated lemon rind, and ⅛ tsp. salt. Makes filling for 8 sandwiches.

Mix ½ cup peanut butter and ¼ cup citrus marmalade. Makes filling for 8 sandwiches.

Mix ½ cup apple butter, ¼ cup nutmeats, and ¼ tsp. allspice. Makes filling for 8 sandwiches.

MOLASSES BREAD FILLINGS

Cream together one 3-oz. pkg. cream cheese and ¼ tsp. ginger. Makes filling for 6 sandwiches.

Cream together ½ cup peanut butter and 2 tbsp. molasses. Makes filling for 6 sandwiches.

Mix ¼ cup peach jam, one 3-oz. pkg. cream cheese, 1 tsp. lemon juice, and ⅛ tsp. salt. Makes filling for 6 sandwiches.

MOLASSES BREAD

1 egg ⅓ cup sugar
½ cup molasses
¼ cup melted shortening
2½ cups sifted enriched flour
2 tsp. baking powder
1 tsp. salt 1 tsp. soda
¾ cup buttermilk or sour milk

Beat egg until light. Add sugar, molasses, and melted shortening. Sift together flour, baking powder, soda and salt. Add to egg mixture alternately with buttermilk or sour milk, mixing only until flour is moistened. Pour into greased loaf pan, 4½ x 8½ inches. Bake in moderate over (350 deg. F.) 1 hour. Makes 1 loaf. Cuts 20 slices ¼ inch thick.

BREAD, BUN OR ROLL FILLINGS

Mix ½ cup avocado pulp, 1 tbsp. lemon juice, and ¼ tsp. salt. Makes filling for 6 sandwiches.

GI Worried About His Wife

"DEAR MISS FAIRFAX: I read something about you in the "Stars and Stripes," in which you were quoted, and it seems to me you would be understanding about my case. I'm writing this from somewhere in Europe.

"I'm 30 years old and married. My wife and I loved each other very much in the first years of our marriage but lately it has seemed to me her love has been weakening. She has been in poor health during the last two years, and on the furlough I had before being sent overseas she acted so strangely, told me she was sorry she had ever married and wanted to go back to her mother.

"It's hard to have her an ocean away and not be able to talk it out and discover what really is the matter. I've always been true to her, sent her money, gifts and have saved some against our future home. I write regularly to her, but she answers only about once a month. Her letters are never loving, and she says things that make me believe she'd like to have her freedom.

"I don't believe in divorce, and if I gave her her freedom, I wouldn't think of trying to make another home. J. J. S."

Is it possible your wife is ill to a degree of feeling incapable of resuming marital relations? If so, she may feel the nursing and care that only a mother could give is all that really matters. If this is her actual reason for writing those strange letters, it's difficult to know why she doesn't come out frankly and give you her real reasons. Her secretive line isn't really normal.

Otherwise, there is the painful alternative—and I hate to suggest it to a man overseas—that she has become interested in someone else. If this is true, and she has proved unworthy of being the wife of a man who has fought in defense of freedom, facing death for his country, you are entitled to know the truth.

Scarf Sleeves Popular

By BETTINA BEDWELL

THE dancer who contents herself with a couple of scarves for a dress may have been the inspiration for the scarf dresses that abound in good designer salons. And it may be that the abundance of pure silk scarves gave them the idea. Anyway, dresses with scarves for sleeves, as little capelets or panels on other materials, are quite an item in summer styles.

Madame Kiviette, who is a designer very much esteemed by the experts, likes to put printed silk scarf panels on sheer wool frocks, and the result can be seen in our sketch. The dress itself is made of sponge wool in a clear pale yellow, and the scarf in green and other colors hangs from a tailored belt at the waistline to the hem of the skirt at the left side.

by Izzy Ort

that altho yers trooly falls a little short (about 1000 miles and $10,000,000) of bein' a big bizness tycoon, a financial wizard and a general all-around genius, you don't have to be a detective to find out that I HAVE got sumthin' here at me Essex street Grille that makes it a popular place to pass the time, be it afternoon or evening. For proof of this stupendous statement jess visit me Grille tonight, or the first time yer in downtown Boston, and note the big, happy crowd of people havin' fun and enjoyin' themselves every second. What I like about me Grille, and I think this is what makes it so popular, is that always present atmosfeer (?) of whoopee and hurray and let's everybody be friends and have a good time. Yessir, no matter how mixed the crowd may be in me Grille, and there's always sailors, soldiers, marines and boys from every branch of the service, as well as office workers, defense workers and all kinds of guys and gals, that spirit of fun and friendliness always bubbles to the top here in me Essex street whoopee parlor . . . State Gyp: Farm Gripe: Point Poll: Lament: Filthy Money

By AUSTEN LAKE

HERE'S HALITOSIS: Our Beacon Hill bonus daddies dreamed up a cute way to force the ex-service men and ladies to pay their own $100 war gift. The bonus papas voted a 2c impost on every package of cigarets for the next six years.

Austen Lake

Almost all service Jacks and Jills are heavy smokers. They became so in the war, where they required a sedative for nerves. Writes "Statistician": "The average service man oxidizes from one to two decks of gaspers per diem. If a one-pack smoker he will be super-taxed $45 in six years. If his ever-lovin' spouse smokes too—and how many don't?—that costs him $90, leaving a margin of $10 from his bonus with which to pay the 50c-per-gallon super-tax on spirits, if he likes his little snort."

And so the only ex-hero who profits a tinker's cuss from that hunk of legislation is the non-puffer and teetotaler, of whom I have met very few in my wide travels in the combat areas and at home. Who got kicked by that cow?

HERE'S HOOPLA: Match these twin items, fresh from the day's mailbag. From T. V. Hastings, Northampton farmer, "Why can't our government lend-lease some of the stuff now being given away to foreign nations, to the American farmer? I could use a new binder, hayloader and reaper. The ones I have are worn out and I can't buy new machinery. How about it?"

From the British Information Service (publicity handout, July 25), "Prof. Roy Rainer, agricultural engineer of the Univ. of Cal., recently spent three months in England as guest of the ministry of agriculture." Among Prof. Rainer's observations, ". . . an American feels very much at home there because of so much farm machinery imported from the States. In fact, there are parts of England where farms are probably more highly mechanized than anywhere else in the world."

Ans.—Feel better, Mr. Hastings?

HERE'S HOTCHA: From Mrs. H. T. V., Brookline: "Sir—You are fond of fighting windmills. You claimed recently, 'If, instead of the United Nations, Germany was now making the peace terms, the U. S. A. would be stripped of its goods, property and wealth.' Isn't that just your personal assumption?"

Ans.—No, Mam! Current AP cable reports the discovery of German High Command secret plans for administration of "Conquered England"—a red-bound, 23-page manuscript completed before Sept. 9, 1940, when Hitler seemed certain of invading Britain. It stipulated the deportation of all English men between 17 and 45 to the continent; total organization of English industry for war against Russia; dividing England into districts with field and town units under German army officers; taking of hostages as security measures; execution of all persons impeding the war effort by guillotine or axe; cancellation of British laws; German audit of all usable materials, property and wealth; control of the monetary system and discretionary power to print English currency at will; coercive surrender of all British fleet units abroad by terroristic penalties at home; sunset to sunrise curfew; strict minimum rationing.

Would Mrs. H. T. V. "assume" that Americans would have fared any better?

HERE'S HALLUCINATION: From "Truth Seeker," Boston: "Sir—For your education I enclose a clipping of a recent Gallup Poll. It refutes flatly your impressionistic writings about the flaws in the soldier's discharge point system. Observe the public's reaction to the question, 'Do you think the point system for releasing men from the Army is fair?' The reply was 72 per cent 'Yes,' only 15 per cent 'No' and 13 per cent no opinion. That should make you eat crow."

Ans. — Let "Truth Seeker" continue his search! The Gallup Poll is based purely on civilian opinion, not on that of Army men concerned. No civilian, remote from the realities of war, can crawl into a soldier or sailor's skull. If anything is "impressionistic" it is a civilian vote on soldier problems. If fairness of the point-discharge system were put to a soldier vote it would fall sharply into two categories, (1) Those who get discharged would vote "swell," (2) Those who were retained in service as "essential" would vote "lousy." Opinion would probably be evenly divided!

This corner has never received a hallelujah letter from any soldier for the point-discharge. That's natural! Any GI who gets his Army diploma just silently shakes hands with himself and fades quietly into the swirling mists of civil life. But I've had lots of low moans and shrill screams from the other kind. Here's one from PFC D. J. Toto, East Boston, now in France. I encountered PFC Toto, whose nickname is "Ty Cobb," in the winter of '43 near Winchester, England, and again at a battery emplacement in Normandy last year.

Listen to him, "It seems people have forgotten us. I'm still in France with 390 other guys, all of us over 85 points and averaging 105. Most of us wear 7 or 8 combat stars and were first to taste war in Africa, later on D-Day Normandy, and on till V-E Day in Germany . . . What are we doing now? We're working side by side with German PWs on labor jobs during daytimes. Nighttimes we guard the PWs.

"We are tired reading newspapers, how many men docked at Boston, the bands and boatloads of girl greeters who meet them, how they get rushed through Myles Standish for quick discharges while we stay eating our hearts out after three years of war. Give my regards to my Ma and Pa and Tony Shucco."

HERE'S HOKUM: Writes "Public Decency": "Sir—Gambling money is unclean . . . I believe our soldiers would vote down so evil a means of providing a bonus as the State-controlled lottery you advocate."

Ans.—Yeh, they're just the guys! I can see 'em now, those lean, sun-tanned moralists in France, Germany and the Pacific, squatting like a football huddle, breathing pagan prayers over the little dice cubes, clutching handfuls of flimsy cash and making the cubes chatter like Grandma's false teeth. Yeh! Just the guys!

Coleman Out, Bissonette Named Braves' Manager

By BILL GRIMES

NEW YORK, July 30—Bob Coleman resigned today as manager of the Braves and was immediately repl aced by Del Bissonette, coach of the club. Del quickly set about finding a nother coach to aid him and Benny Bengouh, the other Tribe coach. Coleman said that since the club was not doing well (the B's lost their ninth straight yesterday to the Dodgers) he thought that a change might help, and hence was stepping down.

BOB COLEMAN
Thinks Change Will Help

Bob will remain with the Braves, organization, probably in the farm system.

Braves, officials emphasized that Bissonette was not being put in as temporary pilot, but as fulltime manager in absolute control, to be given all aid possible in efforts to get the seventh place team back into the running.

Coleman succeeded Casey Stengel before the start of last season, and while he was able to get the team rolling for brief periods, like Stengel he was unable to keep them up. Truth is that Stengel, like Coleman, was anchored by the inepitude of many of his players, who lack either ability or spirit or both.

Bissonette is highly regarded by baseball men, and despite the big task ahead will do his utmost to get something out of the mediocre roster, with an eye to making the Tribe a first division club. He was a heat victim recently on the current trip but soon recovered and is in top physical condition to assume his new duties.

Bissonette hails from Maine and is of French ancestry. He starred for Georgetown and later went to Brooklyn where he was a standout first baseman and slugger for a number of years.

He sustained a broken leg which ended his major league career and he turned to the managerial end. He piloted at Des Moines and later in Nova Scotia and then went to Quebec City where he had considerable success.

The Bradford farm club of the Braves brought him into the Tribe family about five years ago. Last year, as Hartford skipper, he won the Eastern league title. This year he has been acting as third base coach, where he undoubtedly acquired many a headache trying to get some of his charges to play heads-up baseball.

Del has his own ideas of what to do with the Braves and he'll put them in practise quickly, using Tommy Holmes and one or two others as a nucleus for his N. L. machine.

There is something radically wrong with any club which beats itself as frequently as the Braves have on this trip. Of course, the club hasn't hit. Holmes carried the load almost alone all season. But when Tommy was stopped by Hank Wyse in Chicago, the boys, who had been getting their share of hits, flopped completely.

There isn't any excuse, other than dumbness, for the Braves losing nine in a row. They have made more errors of omission than commission. At times pitchers have tried to be smart. They took unwarranted risks, such as laying "two and nothing" pitches right through the heart of the plate. I cannot recall a batter whom they fooled. But, I do remember instances when such serves were belted for home runs, triples and singles, costing the Braves ball games.

One fact that has been brought out forcibly on this jaunt is that the Braves, taken as a unit, are not a collection of brainy ball players. They are quite the opposite. They have come up with so many "sugar bush" plays that one wonders how they ever reached a major league.

The fans appreciate that errors are as much a part of the national pastime as the balls and bats. But, they refuse to excuse players for pulling "bones," which, in some cases we've seen in the past two weeks, would cost a "sandlotter" his job.

It is becoming more and more obvious that some of the boys are not bearing down. The owners must break up that clique, for it is undermining the entire club.

Pres. Louis Perini watched the Braves toss away the last game in Pittsburgh. He knows who was responsible for that defeat.

Al Javery and Bill Lee are due to pitch tomorrow's twin bill. Javery turned in a good relief job in Chicago. Since then he hasn't shown anything, except for seven innings in Pittsburgh. With a four-run lead, "Jave" was forced to retire, when his arm tightened up.

Andrews flopped as a relief pitcher by allowing the Pirates to tie the count in the 9th. Lee has pitched great ball in each of his three starts and if he gets any help tomorrow should knock off the Giants.

Borowy Clicks for Cubs

Hank Borowy, whom the pennant-hungry Cubs purchased from the Yankees only last Friday for a reported $100,000, already has begun to pay dividends. The frail-looking right-hander, whose departure from the American League via the waiver route caused owner Clark Griffith of Washington to go up in arms over the waiver clause, made his National League debut a successful one by pitching a 3-2 victory over Cincinnati. The Cubs scored a double triumph over the Reds, when Hank Wyse won the opener, 4-1, for his 15th win, tops for National League hurlers.

Fordham Hank limited the Reds to seven safeties, and after yielding single tallies in the second and third frames, held the Redlegs scoreless the remainder of the contest.

The double win gave the Bruins a record of 13 victories in 13 starts against the Reds, and increased their first place lead over the Cardinals to five and a half games.

If President Larry MacPhail of the Yankees felt any remorse over Borowy's fine showing with the Cubs, he must have been comforted by the Bronxites' double win over Connie Mack's Athletics, 2-1 and 11-3. The clean sweep moved the Yanks into second place, one game over the Senators, who lost to the Red Sox.

The Cardinals divided a doubleheader with Pittsburgh. The Pirates won the opener, 9-6, in 10 innings and the Redbirds won the second, 6-4.

A Detroit crowd of 33,789 saw the Tigers come from behind to defeat the White Sox, 4-2.

24 Charity Nights to Be Awarded to Dog Tracks

By JACK CONWAY

THE MASSACHUSETTS Racing Commission is expected to award charity nights of dog racing this week . . . There will be 12 nights for Wonderland Park at Revere and six nights each for Taunton and Raynham . . . The 24 nights of extra racing will raise $750,000 for recognized charities.

Governor Tobin, Chairman of the Racing Commission Louis Hoffman and Commissioners Bayard Tuckerman, Jr., and Harry Allen have made it clear they intend to do everything possible to see that those charities that shared in the profits of dog tracks in 1944 are given the same opportunity to do so this year . . . Mike Kelleher of the Community Fund and Jules Haller of the Red Cross are working out a charity program at Wonderland Park.

Mike Kelleher

Archbishop Cushing's charities will also receive a part of the profits from the charity racing.

The 12 nights of charity racing at Wonderland Park will net more than $500,000 while the 12 nights of racing at Taunton and Raynham will bring the grand total over $750,000.

Dog and horse racing have done more for war and peace charities than other sports . . . Their contributions will be as large this year as in 1944 despite curtailed racing dates.

Air Rate Has' Class

AIR RATE, winner of the $10,000 Miles Standish Stakes at Suffolk Downs, is one of the finest two-year-olds to ever race at Suffolk Downs. Dave Wilson, who picked Air Rate to win and Pay Me to take second honors, says Air Rate is likely to be the favorite for the $25,000 Mayflower Stakes which will be held at Suffolk Downs a week from Wednesday.

Air Rate under a perfect ride from Jockey Herb Trent did everything asked of him in the Myles Standish Stakes. He was away from the gate with the leaders, and once he was moved out front he was never in danger.

Fred Wyse's two-year-old filly, Here's How, also looked impressive as she won the Priscilla to pay the short price of $2.80. Jockey Trent was also the rider on Here's How.

The two-year-olds have been displaying particularly good form during the meeting at the East Boston track. Two-year-olds are usually sound, and they run back to their previous race much better than older horses who are frequently obliged to overcome the effects of old injuries.

Valdina Craft ran out of gas in the John Alden, and Momo Flag came from behind to win with Float Me second. Valdina Craft set a dizzy pace in the first stages of the one mile and a furlong event, but was a very tired horse when he reached the head of the stretch. Jockeys say it is impossible to rate Valdina Craft. He is the type of horse who must be permitted to run at full speed. The jockey and trainer can merely hope that Valdina Craft will have enough left for the race through the stretch.

The victory of Mixer was a popular one. Mixer has been one of the most consistent horses racing in this country during the past three years. He usually finishes in the money.

BASEBALL IS still offering silly reasons why Hank Borowly, crack pitcher of the Yankees, was permitted to go to the Chicago Cubs in a $100,000 deal. The American League magnates picture their organizations as being so stupid they did not know that Larry MacPhail intended to let Borowy get out of the American League.

Of course the deal will stand. The Cubs will also win the National League pennant, while the Tigers will likely capture the American League flag. Then there will be the World's Series between the Cubs and the Tigers. With Chicago and Detroit less than 250 miles apart there cannot be any sane objection by the ODT to a World's Series.

At least Borowy will cut into a juicy World's Series melon.

Don't shed too many tears for American League clubs which claim they were sleeping while Larry MacPhail was putting over his big deal. The public will receive its dividends in being permitted to see a World's Series in the Fall.

Bob Johnson Rejoices Over 2000th Basehit

By HUCK FINNEGAN

Robert Lee Johnson was a happy Indian today as the Red Sox rested between the departure of the Senators and the arrival (tomorrow) of the Borowy-less and McCarthy-less Yanks. The 210-pound left fielder passed the 2000 mark in basehits in Sunday's single game with the Senators and enjoyed a perfect day at bat to climb over the .300 mark.

"I've got something to remember that 2000th hit by," he beamed like a rookie. "See this bat. First one I've broken this season, and I broke it on my 2000th hit. It's quite apropos because the name of my ranch near Yelm, Wash., is Broken Bat. It'll make quite a souvenir."

He had another souvenir, too. That was the ball on which he broke his bat while poking one of Niggeling's knucklers between Cliff at third and Torres at short. "Rommel got it for me," said Johnson. Plate Umpire Rommel was still pitching for the A's when Johnson made his debut under Connie Mack in '33.

He had reached the quite magic figure in his 13th season, something few men before him had done. For example, Joe Kuhel and Roger Cramer, only active players leading Johnson in basehits, came up several years before him. And in the matter of runs-batted-in he leads Cramer and Kuhel by wide margins.

"We Johnsons don't seem to have much luck getting into World Series, though," smiled Bob. "Walter was up from 1907 to 1924 before he got his break. Me, I haven't been in one yet, and if I have to wait as long as Walter, why I just won't be around."

Bob admits he was 39 last November, and he's nearing the end of his rope. But he's delighted to be playing out his days in Boston. "Wish I could have played my entire big league career here," he said sincerely.

He's been one of the slugging greats of his time and had he been fortunate enough to have started here in '33 he'd rank right up with Ruth, Foxx, Gehrig, Heilmann, et al. That left field wall was made to order for him, both in batting and throwing. And now at the advanced age of 39 he's still good enough to be leading the league in runs batted in with 56. In the two seasons he's been with the Sox he's been as much help on the offense as Dave Ferriss this year has been on the defense.

TODAY A YEAR AGO—Ann Curtis of San Francisco bettered world's 880-yard freestyle swimming mark for women with 11:08.6 clocking.

TEN YEARS AGO—England handed the United States team its second shutout in the Davis Cup tennis challenge round at Wimbledon.

Johnson doubled to center first time up. He walked second time. He opened the three-run fifth with hit No. 2000, and for the first time in the history of Fenway Park Eddie Collins yelled to Announcer Red Hoffman, "Tell the crowd about it." Hoffman did, and the 10,183 fans kept applauding Bob all afternoon . . . "And I'm still looking for my first major league hit," signed pitcher Vic Johnson.

Eddie Lake's howitzer arm helped the Sox to three DP's and boosted their total to 115. They lead the league in this department. Lake's marvelous assistance in the ninth kept O'Neill in the game . . . O'Neill passed six, made one wild pitch as he notched his eighth victory, his fourth over the Senators. He was combed for 11 hits, but the Sox hit Niggeling and Haefner even harder . . .

Ferriss will hurl against the Yanks tomorrow. After Thursday's game, the Sox head for Washington where they play double-headers Friday night, Saturday and Sunday afternoons . . . Binks is the best drag bunter in the league . . . Catcher Bill Holm's style of batting makes knuckle-ball pitchers his "cousins" . . . Clift, ever dangerous here, was fanned thrice by O'Neill.

Paul V. Connors Killed in Action

Reported missing in action last February, the Army made official yesterday the death of Sgt. Paul V. Connors, in a message to his wife, Mrs. Helen Connors of Addison st., Chelsea.

Thus the 14th Gold Star takes its place in the service flag floating from the front of the Record-American-Sunday Advertiser building.

A combat correspondent for Stars and Stripes, Paul was on a mission when the Flying Fortress in which he was a passenger exploded over Germany, and his body was never found.

He broke into the newspaper profession as a correspondent for the Record-American while a student at Boston College. On graduation in the class of '42 he became a member of the sports staff of these papers, continuing until he went into service. He was 29 years old and leaves a mother, also of Chelsea, in addition to his wife. Funeral arrangements will be announced later.

Don't Let Summer Sun Harm Your Hair

YOUR hair-growing structure is delicate and may react unfavorably to over-exposure to the hot rays of the mid-day summer sun. You owe it to yourself, therefore, to learn how you can help, rather than harm your hair, during the summer months.

Twenty years of success endows The Thomas' with the necessary skill and ability to correctly advise you. Consult a Thomas expert today (without charge, in private). He'll tell you when and how to expose your hair to the summer sun; when to wear a hat; what to do about excessive perspiration on the scalp—about salt-water bathing and shower baths. He'll show you, too, how the reliable proved Thomas method removes dandruff scales, and how it relieves the itch which local excrement may cause. Remember—consultation and advice without charge!
